MEETINGS CHECKLIST FOR A CHAIR

(40-20-40)

BEFORE

The planning and design is where the real magic is created.

Set the purpose of the meeting.		Identify roles (who is best placed to chair, take notes, moderate, time keep etc).
Who should be there? Identify what will		,
motivate participants to attend.		Anticipate likely sticking points and how might you deal with them.
Consider guest spots for people who don't		• need to be there for the entire meeting.		Have conversations with any participants where you anticipate tricky issues – try to Invite enticingly – don't be afraid to stand out or make it exciting.		understand how they might define success.
Send info before – rather than outline the problem during the meeting, do that		Have contingencies in plan for sickness, travel disruptions etc.
beforehand.		Get the kit in place (projectors, flip charts etc).
Set suggested timings for each item on the Agenda (leave wriggle room).		Low take up? Call to check why and to explain why you would like them to be there.
Play with timings – start at 10 past the hour, and finish before 10 to the hour.	ON	LINE MEETINGS
Consider the environment – have all or part of the meeting outside, or as a standing meeting.		Allow additional time in agenda for people to connect or dial-in.
Utilise the space – decide best room layout and any other improvements you can make		Use materials that call for interaction.
to the environment.		Test log-in process and technology to ensure you are familiar with features.
Include breaks in your agenda.		Have phone-in/conference call facility for
Order, or delegate providing refreshments.		those who can't attend (or log-in).
Send agenda and purpose statement a few days in advance.

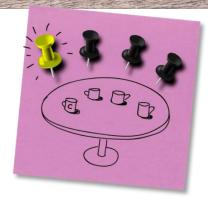

MY MEETINGS CHECKLIST

(40-20-40)

DURING

As the chair you are the central figure steering the meeting - you are also the steward of other people's time and attention.

Start the meeting on time! You are the meeting host – welcome your participants like guests. Value their attendance and their attention. Reiterate the purpose of the meeting at the start.	Use meeting tools, such as stand-up agenda items, group work or silent meetings to improve collaboration and focus. Finish the meeting on time (or early if you can – bosh!)
Acknowledge any challenging behaviour (i.e. later-comers) quickly but sensitively in order to keep the meeting on track. Allow everyone to 'check in' (PIP).	ONLINE MEETINGS Log on 10 mins early to test set-up and to greet attendees.
Protocols. Establish ground rules for distractions. Be clear about what is expected from participants before, during and after the meeting.	Turn the video on to make people feel more engaged, to improve focus and eliminate multitasking. Call on people to share their thoughts or use
Make sure that any Actions will be captured. Watch and listen out for any 'undercurrents'. Don't be afraid to use the power of the pause. Stick to the agenda unless there is a good reason	round table approach to help maintain attention. For open discussions, make use of technology such as 'raise a hand' button and chat. Check-in periodically: how are people doing? Is everyone getting enough airtime?
not to do so. Is the discussion getting repetitive, off topic or just plain dull – move it on! Remind everyone of the purpose.
Use a flip chart/post it notes for car parking items and capturing ideas.
Is everyone able to contribute? Give everyone the opportunity to do so.
What are the energy levels like and everyone's attention? (Take a break).

AFTER

Ensuring productive follow-up.

- Summarise actions and decisions at the end so they have been captured (including by whom and when for each action).
- No Action is equal be realistic about which Actions are critical to help people prioritise their workloads.
- Communicate the plan for sharing follow-up.
- Remind people of the time and date for the next meeting (if applicable).
- Use the 10 minutes at the end of the meeting to give people option of staying on to compete any quick 2-minute actions there and then.
- Disengagement and non-attendance follow up with people to find out why.

- Do a post-mortem analysis was it relevant, useless, effective?
 - → if I was chairing the meeting how did I do?
 - what could we do better?
 - do we still need to have this meeting regularly?
 - → did we stick to agreed time?
 - were the right people at the meeting?
 - did we achieve our purpose?
 - Are there any discussions I want to follow up on outside of the meeting?
